HOSPITAL EPIDEMIC CAUSES 2 DEATHS

By The Associated Press
COLUMBIA, O., Sept. 10.—Dr. William H. Peitcher, superintendent of the Columbia State hospital, blamed the outbreak of typhoid fever today for second death at the institution. The victim was Miss Danella Stearns, 25, of Fusesburg, O., a patient at the hospital since 1932.

Dr. Peitcher said 42 patients were isolated on a precaution against spreading the disease, and that the outbreak apparently was under control. The source of the infection which had caused the death of a male patient and made a dozen others ill has not been found.

 The wool market was active and prices were generally higher than last week.

Time to bargain in the livestock market today. Sales in most cases were moderate in volume, but quite a wide variety of kinds was shown. Prices generally were quite firm.

Time to bring Ohio Horses brought mostly fairly good results in the prices. Some lengths of about Ohio horses moved at $44.44 cents. Most all grades of standard territory would have having some call at prices only a few cents less than during the past week to 10 days.

Can be sown any time this month for a good stand next season. Many farmers are taking advantage of the fall rains to bring it along.

RECENT RAIN WILL SAVE PART OF U. S. CORN CROP

Bulk of Grain Already Ruined Though; Moisture Also Helps Farmers With Their Fall Plowing.

By The Associated Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 16. — Much of the late corn crop is a result of recent rains in the drought-stricken grain belt was reported yesterday by the weather bureau.

The improvement in conditions in Iowa and Missouri eastward, the bureau's weekly survey of farm conditions said.

The report made no estimate of the percentage of the crop which could be saved, pointing out that "the bulk" had been ruined before the rains came.

A large part of the rain has already been reported by the federal crop survey, which is making a survey of the situation in the corn belt. The survey is being made by a team of federal and state crop surveyors.

It is her plan to give up Philadelphia manner, her 14-room home and "try to make everybody happy." First day's receipts amounted to $2,000. (Associated Press Photo)

Official Records Show August Was Really Hot

Marionites were heard to question frequently last month whether something couldn't be done about evening up the 18 below zero temperatures of last winter with the 100-plus days of July and August.

August weather was on a par with the scorching July variety, figures of the local observer show.

The average temperature in Marion last month was 77.8, six degrees above the statistical average compiled by federal weather officials.

For 16 days last month the mercury was above 90, going to 101 and 102 twice, and for the most part climbing near the 100 mark. Sweltering by day, Marionites were given little relief at night, with minimum temperatures in the 70's for 13 nights, and falling below the 60 degree line on only seven nights.

Normal August minimum readings range from the 40's through the 60's and once, in 1915, a record low of 38 was set.

In other ways, August had its moments—the days when "it rained." Precipitation records show that 12 times during the month temporary relief was brought by showers or hard rains that brought the total rainfall for the month to 3.01 inches, only 12 of an inch below the average for Marion. The heaviest rainfall was .82 of an inch on the twenty-ninth.

Ten days of the month were clear from sunrise to sunset, 14 were partly cloudy and 7 were cloudy.
